WIDE SEARCH FOR AVIATORS IS ABANDONED

Mystery of Amelia Earhart Locked in Pacific

By The Associated Press

Honolulu, July 19.—The mystery of Amelia Earhart lay locked in the silent watery wastes of the vast Pacific today. Four naval vessels and the 1500 weary men who sought her and her navigator 16 days gave them up for dead and sailed for home.

More than 250,000 square miles of Equatorial ocean, reefs and islands were scoured by ship and plane in an almost hopeless search for the tousel-haired aviatrix and her companion, Capt. Frederick J. Noonan, who dropped from sight July 2.

Somewhere near the dot which is Howland Island, Miss Earhart and Noonan dropped from the skies in their fuelless land plane on a 2,570-mile flight from Lae, New Guinea, to the mid-Pacific sandspot.

"Just for Fun"

The 39-year-old woman flier, known to the world for her aviation exploits, was circling the earth "just for fun," she said, but also to blaze possible new commercial routes.

The great naval hunt, which began a few minutes after the pair were overdue at Howland, was called off late yesterday when navy authorities decided they had exhausted every possibility of ever finding the missing fliers.

The closing order crushed the last hope of rescue held by George Palmer Putnam, motion picture executive husband of Miss Earhart, who obtained leave from his duties to further her world-flight plans.

"I am deeply appreciative of what the navy has done," the grief-stricken husband declared in Los Angeles. "That is all I can say."

Amelia Earhart was a true pioneer of the air.

Her record aloft was punctuated with an imposing array of "firsts," mostly for women, but containing also several feats that put her in the front rank of the world's fliers, masculine as well as feminine.

She was the first woman to fly the Atlantic, the first of her sex to solo it and the first person to wing away from America to Europe twice. Her solo flight, starting from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on May 31, 1932, established a record for the crossing of 14 hours, 56 minutes.

She also was the first woman to compass both trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific flights and her trip from Hawaii to California on January 11-12, 1935, made her the first flier to do a solo flight over the western ocean.

She was the first aviatrix to cross the continental United States both by stages and non-stop, the first woman to fly an autogyro, and, by the same token, the first to wreck one.

In 1920, two years after she

He's Now Eligible

Woodlawn, Ill., July 19.—(AP)—Louis George Coombs is eligible for a new career in office-holding.

Coombs, a former county official, found recently he was not a U. S. citizen because his foreign-born father had never been naturalized.

Coombs took steps to fix that. Full citizenship was granted him on his 90th birthday.

Undercover Attack

A piece of evidence has fallen into administration hands indicating that despite William Green's public endorsement of the wage-hour regulation bill, his henchmen secretly are against it.

It consists of a letter written by Representative E. E. Cox, bitterly anti-labor Georgian, to George L. Goetz, chief A. F. of L. organizer of the south and Green's personal choice to combat C. I. O. organization of southern textile workers. In his letter, Cox acknowledged receipt of telegram from Goetz "expressing opposition to the wage-hour bill," but warns him that the bill will be passed by the House.

"I am strongly opposed to the measure," Cox wrote. "But it comes with administration approval and

Two Election Officials Get Jail Sentences

Isadore Stern, Republican judge, and Charles Moore, Negro, Democratic judge, drew four month terms in the county jail. Mrs. Edna Gray, Negro, substitute Democratic judge, was fined $150. Mrs. Jennie Lou Allen, Negro, Democratic clerk, and Mrs. Mattie Ratcliff, Negro, Republican clerk, were fined $50 each.

ITALIAN WAR VETERAN HELD AS MURDERER

Joliet Woman Killed By Companion, Officers Say

Joliet, Ill., July 19.—(AP)—Angelo Audi, 46, was charged with murder today several hours after the fatal slaying of his companion, Mrs. Minnie Bianconi, 32, a widow of nearby Steger, Ill. He had told authorities two men in a car accosted them, cut his throat, chased him away, and then killed Mrs. Bianconi.

Deputy Sheriff Thomas Wise of Will county said discovery in Audi's rooming house of a razor similar to one believed used in killing the woman "cleared up the mystery."

Policeman Laurie Herman of Steger, who found Mrs. Bianconi's body a short distance from Steger in a cornfield, said a blood-stained razor was found near the body, which was badly mutilated. He said a sickle and hatchet, also bloody, were discovered at Audi's house. Throat slashed Audi, who said he served with the Italian army during the Ethiopian conquest several years ago, was in a Chicago Heights hospital. The murder warrant was signed by Edward F. Powers, State's Attorney investigator.

In reporting the killing to the authorities, Audi said his throat was cut with a razor taken from his pocket by one of two men in an automobile who stopped them as they walked along the road and warned him to "keep away from that woman."

Wise said the interior but not the exterior of Audi's home was blood spattered, indicating that "Audi himself cut his throat after reaching home."

Has Little Chance.

Wise said the blood on the hatchet and sickle probably was from Audi's wounds. Hospital attendants, who said Audi had little chance to recover, inserted a breathing tube because his trachea was severed.

Wise said the killing apparently followed an argument over a mishap to Audi's car while Mrs. Bianconi was in possession of it.

"TRIANGLE CRIME"

McLeansboro, Ill., July 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Emilie Rakauskas and her former husband, John Urman, were held here today for questioning in the slaying of Mrs. Rakauskas, present husband, Joe, who was beaten to death Friday night in front of his farm home near Macedonia, Ill.

Sheriff Sam Malone quoted Mrs. Rakauskas as saying several men she did not know called her husband out of bed late Friday night and ordered her to remain in the house. She said she heard the men argue with her husband and tell him, "We know you've got the money."

She said she believed they referred to "some money" Rakauskas collected recently after his house burned. She said she was afraid to leave the house until about 5 A. M. Saturday, when she found her husband's battered body near the house.

Sheriff Malone said he arrested Urman when he learned Urman had come to Franklin county, Ill., recently from West Virginia. Both Urman, a coal miner, and Mrs. Rakauskas denied any connection with the killing, Malone said.

BRIEF VISITOR HERE

Ex-Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, Republican candidate in the last general election, was a visitor in Dixon for a short time this morning, en route from Chicago to Mississippi farm, near Oregon, where he had luncheon with former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois. This afternoon the two stalwart leaders of the Republican party spent in conference.

Gov. Landon was flown to Dixon from Chicago in the Charles R. Walgreen plane and landed at the Dixon airport at 12 o'clock noon, where he was met by George E. Shaw, editor of The Telegraph, who took him to Mississippi.

Three Loveland Estate Trustees Qualified in Lee Co. Circuit Court

Newcomer, Weyant, Senneff to Super-vised Affairs

F. X. Newcomer, J. U. Weyant and H. M. Senneff will act as trustees for the estate of Mrs. George Loveland, which lists a bequest of $500,000, practically the entire estate to the city of Dixon, for the purpose of erecting a community house.

In Circuit Court this morning the three posted bond of $100,000 before Judge I. L. Weaver of Sterling. Newcomer was named executor of the estate according to the terms of the will.

The will provides that the community house shall contain whatever equipment is deemed necessary for the recreation of the people of Dixon in the judgment of the trustees of the estate. Mrs. Loveland died June 30 following a fatal accident at her home when she fell off the front porch in her wheel chair and suffered concussion of the brain.

Divorce Granted

Judge Weaver granted a divorce in Circuit court this morning to Mildred M. Baker, Paw Paw, who charged her husband Donald A. Baker of extreme physical and mental cruelty. She was married to Baker December 24, 1933. On several occasions she testified he had beaten her and used abusive language. She expressed a desire to resume her maiden name this request being granted by the court.

A complaint and cognovit action of H. L. Moore, receiver vs. Austin Butler and Dean Ball was heard in Circuit court this morning. A motion to open judgment by confession was made by Attorney W. H. Winn representing Austin and Ball. Attorney H. C. Warner represented Moore. Austin and Ball claimed the confession of judgment was opened following the expiration of a lease, an action which was declared unwarranted by Attorney Winn.

The court appointed Frank Marshall as trustee to the Grover Seybert estate this morning. Marshall posted $2500 bond.

HE MUST BE JINN

C. B. Lindell bobs up every now and then particularly during golf tournaments. Last year at the Plum Hollow stag he sank a tee shot off No. 5 that he could not count as a hole in one because it was his second try from the tee after driving one into the woods. Yesterday at the city midsummer open golf tournament he was sitting near the caddy house when a long drive off No. 2 tee by Earl James sliced and snapped right into his lap, full force, denting a half dollar in his pocket with the imprint of a golf ball. Clem wonders what would have happened if he hadn't had this financial armor to protect him!

Norfolk, Va., July 19.—(AP)—Police put Johnnie Sowell on the auction block.

Officers here said they received this message from police at Lufkin, Texas:

"We have Johnnie Sowell in jail here. How much reward will you pay for him? He is wanted in several states and the man that pays the biggest reward is the man that is going to get him. Answer."

Chicago Police Offer Blood for Brave Chef Who Outfought Thugs

Chicago, July 19.—(AP)—Lige Debowski, 42-year-old chef, was near death in a hospital today from three bullet wounds inflicted during a gun battle with two robbers who held up a liquor store.

Debowski disarmed one of the robbers and fatally wounded him. Then he shot the other in an exchange of bullets at close range in which he himself was killed.

Police identified the dead gunman as George Carson, an ex-convict, and his wounded partner as Edmund Blunt, who was paroled from the penitentiary where he served a sentence for robbery.

More than a dozen policemen, praising Debowski's bravery, volunteered blood transfusions.

Embarrassing

Newark, N. J., July 19.—(AP)—Police Sergeant Edward F. Tucker, off duty, strolled out of a restaurant and saw a young man trying to start a car.

"What's the matter, Bud?" he asked.

"Can't get it started."

"The ignition key is not in the lock," said the sergeant, politely.

"I haven't got it," said the young man.

"I have," said Tucker. "It's my car."

INNOCENT PLEA TO BE ENTERED BY EX-MINISTER

Attorneys Talk With Confessed Slayer of 'Best Friend'

Pittsfield, Ill., July 19.—(AP)—Two Kansas City attorneys, M. S. Turner and Daniel T. Johnson, conferred for nearly two hours today with the Rev. C. E. Newton, accused slayer, in his jail cell.

After the conference Johnson said Newton would plead innocent but declined to outline the defense they plan for the 51 year old Paris, Mo., Baptist minister who is charged with slaying Mrs. Dennis Kelly, 45, his devoted friend and former parishoner. The attorneys merely said they had "been retained."

Turner and Johnson arrived by motorcar with Noel and Forrest Newton, sons of the minister.

To Recall Grand Jury

State's Attorney Merrill Johnston planned to ask the circuit court this afternoon to recall the April term grand jury at once to consider the case against Newton.

He had not questioned the minister today or developed any new major angles not included in Newton's 11-page statement in which the Pike county official quoted him as saying he hit the woman over the head with a hammer and tossed her body into the Mississippi river.

The wiry, gray-haired pastor spent a calm weekend in his cell in the Pike county jail here despite being confronted with a hammer Johnston described as "the bloodstained death weapon."

Identified Weapon

"That's the hammer," Johnston quoted Newton as saying when it was shown him. The comment was made without any display of emotion.

The hammer was found by Ray Engheart, a farmer, about 6 feet from a pool of blood where Newton and Mrs. Kelly struggled after an argument last Monday night as he aided her on a flight from home and husband, Johnston said.

Mrs. Kelly's body was recovered from the river at Louisiana, Mo., last Tuesday.

Hunt For Missing Taxicab Driver Is Pushed Today

Cushington, Okla., July 19.—Search for a missing Tulsa taxicab driver was pushed near here today by state patrolmen and local officers who theorized the taxicab might have been seized by Roy "Pete" Traxler, elusive southwestern desperado, and two other Texas prison farm fugitives.

NO COMMENT

Avon, N. J., July 19.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner declined today to comment on Governor Lehman's letter urging him to oppose President Roosevelt's court reform plan.

Wagner, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dalton said he had not seen Lehman's letter and presumed it was addressed to either his New York or Washington office.

Alabama Waives Supreme Penalty "Scottsboro" Case

Decatur, Ala., July 19.—(AP)—The state waived capital punishment today in the case of Andy Wright, one of nine "Scottsboro" defendants, and the new series of trials was resumed after a conference between attorneys at which the agreement was reached.

Assistant Attorney General Thomas S. Lawson said the agreement covered the Wright case only and did not affect charges against other defendants.

The negroes are accused of a mass attack on Victoria Price and Ruby Bates aboard a freight train near Scottsboro, Ala., in 1931.

It was Wright first trial since April, 1931. He was sentenced to death at Scottsboro in the original trials, but the conviction was set aside by the United States Supreme Court.

FOES TO ASK ISSUE GO TO COMMITTEE

New York Governor Expresses Fear of Scheme

Aboard Special Congressional Train, July 19.—(AP)—Opponents of the president's court bill announced today they would seek a senate vote on that bitterly-fought issue early this week.

Senator Burke (D-Neb.), a leader of the opposition, said a motion to send the Supreme Court reorganization measure back to committee for further study probably would be made tomorrow, and added:

"We are confident we can carry the motion by a comfortable margin."

His announcement was virtually the first public statement on the court controversy made by any member of the congressional delegation which accompanied the body of Senator Robinson (D-Ark.) to his Little Rock home for burial.

Challenge Accepted

Burke's challenge was accepted quickly by Senator Minton (D-Ind.), one of the court bill's most vigorous defenders, who declared:

"We are ready to vote any time, and I know that we can win."

Vice President Garner, who joined the party at Little Rock, told senators he would take no part in the court controversy, nor in the equally close-drawn struggle for the senate leadership.

He conferred today with both candidates for the leadership, Senators Barkley (D-Ky.) and Harrison (D-Miss.), but carefully avoided any appearance of favoritism.

GOV. LEHMAN PLEADS

Albany, N. Y., July 19.—(AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman, in a letter to U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner (D-N.Y.), today asked him to voice opposition to President Roosevelt's Supreme Court reorganization bill.

Lehman, Democratic successor to President Roosevelt as New York's governor, told Wagner that "the president is already familiar with my views with regard to the bill."

"Several months ago I wrote to him that I believed its enactment would not be in the best interests of the country," he asserted. "In the months that have passed since then my convictions have become strengthened."

"Like many others, I have frequently felt keen disappointment that important measures have been unconstitutional by a slim and unconvincing margin in the Supreme Court, and yet I believe that the orderly and deliberate processes of government should not be sacrificed merely to meet an immediate situation."

"From the broad standpoint of the public's interest, whatever immediate gain might be achieved through the proposed change to the court would, in my opinion, be far more than offset by a loss of confidence in the independence of the courts and in governmental procedure."

started to fly, she set a women's altitude record of 14,000 feet. In 1929 she established a speed record for women of 158.7 miles an hour, raising the mark in 1930 to 181.18. Ruth Nichols later bettered this speed.

Received Flying Cross

As a crown for her solo trans-

Atlantic flight in 1932, she was decorated by President Hoover

with the gold medal of the National Geographic Society, the first time it had been presented to a woman. The same year France,

Rumania and Belgium bestowed decorations and congress voted her the distinguished flying cross, the same reward given Col. Charles A.

Lindbergh for his history-making flight of five years earlier.

A slender blonde, with tousled, unruly hair, she so definitely resembled Lindbergh, especially when in flying tows, that a Boston tugboat hand who saw her start on her first flight to Europe dubbed her "Lady Lindy." To this physical likeness was added a likeness of habit for, like him, she flew only after carefully detailed preparations, seldom announced her plans definitely in advance and was a firm, though pleasant, resistant of what she considered undue personal publicity.

She was born in Atchison, Kan.,

July 24, 1898. Her father, Edwin

E. Earhart, was an attorney and railroad claim agent who made frequent moves about the country and, as a consequence, his daughter attended six different high schools and three colleges. Her only definite graduation was from

Hyde Park high school, Chicago, in 1915.

Her first flying lessons were in Los Angeles, where she had gone from work in Columbia university,

New York, so as to be with her father. He didn't approve her airmindedness so she pawned jewelry and a fur coat to get the money

Flight Brings Fame and Husband

She accumulated 10 years of years of flying experience here and there and was in Boston in her second year as head of the girls' work of Denison House, a social settlement, when she met George

Palmer Putnam, a New York publisher, who was seeking a woman

as co-pilot of a trans-Atlantic flight backed by Mrs. Frederick

Guest of London.

That flight, made with Wilmer

Stutz, pilot, and Louis Gordon, mechanic, in the tri-motored monoplane "Friendship" was accomplished from Trepassey Bay, Newfoundland, to Burry Port, Wales, on June 18, 1928, in barely under 21 hours. It made her the first woman to cross the Atlantic by plane and brought her fame and monetary rewards.

Incidentally it introduced her to

Mr. Putnam. They were married at Noank, Conn., on February 7, 1931.

The aviatrix announced she would retain her maiden name as a professional cognomen and it was as Amelia Earhart that she continued to set aviation records.

ASK NEW TRIAL

Chicago, July 19—(AP)—Counsel for Dr. Frank J. Furch Jr., 30-year-old chiropractor, convicted of slaying Mrs. Norma Schmidt, his second divorced wife, laid plans today for a new trial. Conviction carried a 14-year prison sentence.

"Hope has been restored to me," he told friends who visited him at the Cook county jail, "for now there will be plenty of fighting."

Arguments on the motion for a new trial will be heard Aug. 3.

Throughout the trial, which started July 6, the state had demanded the death penalty. The jury reached its verdict Saturday after seven hours and 10 minutes' deliberation.

The Beard home was appropriately decorated, the color scheme being pink and white. Miss Gladys Ortigues was fortunate in receiving the piece of wedding cake which contained the fateful ring. The ice cream was in the shape of pink and white wedding bells. Dainty pink and white nut cups helped to carry out the effect. Jealous Husband Kills Wife and Young Hired Hand

New London, Mo., July 19.—(AP)—Jealousy of a young hired hand caused Bud Foster, 42-year old farmer, to shoot his wife and the youth and then slash his throat. Prosecuting Attorney D. Newlon said today an investigation indicated.

The bodies of Mrs. Foster, 35, and the 16-year-old farm hand, Albert McEwen, were found in the dining room of the Foster home Thursday night. Foster, his throat cut, was discovered in a driveway at a neighboring farm.

Newlon expressed the opinion Foster had beaten his wife over the head with his shotgun after killing her, and "in so doing damaged the gun so that he was unable to kill himself with it."

The Fosters, who had been married 12 years, had quarreled and been reconciled several times. Newlon said. About a month ago Foster left home and his wife employed McEwen, to help her in managing their dairy farm.

EVERYBODY TO HIS OWN NOTIONS

Addressing, "My dear Alben," who in public life is Senator A. W. Barkley of Kentucky, an aspirant for the post of Senator Robinson as majority leader of the United States senate, President Roosevelt says:

"Since the untimely death of our majority leader I had hoped with you that at least until his funeral services had been held a decent respect for his memory would have deferred discussion of political and legislative matters."

"It is therefore with regret that I find that advantage is being taken of what, in all decency, should be a period of mourning."

"Because of this situation, however, I am compelled in the public interest, though against every inclination, to write you."

He might as well have added:

"If these common politicians have no regard for decency, I haven't either, and I'm going to be right down in the political hole with them, dragging the office of president of the United States with me."

If the president desired to communicate with Senator Barkley, he still might have done so without publishing to the world the fact that he had put aside the proprieties of his office to indulge in a political brawl.

In all fairness, can anybody imagine President Hoover or President Coolidge or President Harding or President Wilson or President Taft or President McKinley or President Cleveland so indulging himself on such a slim pretext?

WHEN THE STATE CONTROLS LABOR

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor gave voice to the traditional objection of that body to congressional legislation fixing wages, when he testified before the joint senate and house committee on labor. Mr. Green knows something about governmental power over labor.

When government dictates to labor, the outcome is likely to be as it is to be found in Germany, a situation recently reported on by the National Industrial Conference board. It found that—

The collective power of labor has been destroyed.

There is no collective bargaining and no right to strike.

Under the present legal system there can be no strike except against the state.

Organizations of industry and trade are controlled by the state. Their head is not a business leader chosen by them, but the national socialist minister of economic affairs.

They have the privilege of advising him, but they can not refuse to obey his orders.

In individual business and industrial establishments the individual business man has been made the leader. His employees are his followers. They can not refuse to carry out his orders, but they can complain to the labor trustee against his decisions.

The labor trustee is the court of first instance and final resort for the settlement of labor difficulties. Neither the employer nor the worker can protest against his decisions.

Strife between employers and workers has been prohibited.

They are told by the state that the only employer in Germany is the German people and that no private interest is sacred if it is not in harmony with the interest of the nation.

The state can dismiss the owner of an enterprise from the position of leadership if his behavior offends against social honor. For the same reason it can deprive an employee of the position he occupies.

In the final analysis, the state fixes prices, wages, rates of interest, and the volume and distribution of credit.

Dictatorship furnishes the power to make the machine run.

DOWN WITH THE RAGWEED

The time to cut a weed is when cutting means disposal of it for the season. Most of our weeds are dealt with fatally in August.

If part of us knew what the rest of us know about the suffering ragweed causes hay fever victims, there would be no ragweed cluttering up vacant lots and fence rows.

The health department of Illinois has issued information that the most decisive stroke against ragweed and hay fever may be made before August 22. War on almost any kind of weeds may be begun any time in August.

If mowed down in that season some of them practically are done for the year. Some, the ragweed among them, will attempt new growth, but they will not proceed far enough to affect hay fever victims before frost comes and fever abates.

There are plenty of other reasons for keeping weeds cut, but the one set forth by the health department is most compelling when other appeals fail.

SO, THERE MAY BE A CONSUMER

At last the undiscovered "consumer" has broken into the public prints.

REMINISCENCES

By H. G. REMINGTON

Dixon Telegraph Staff Writer and Former London Times Military and Feature Writer

Two of the most learned men of their day on the subject of oceanography were the Abbe Theo Moreau, for many years director of the Observatory of Bourges, France, and the late Prince Albert, ruler of Monaco and its gambling casino of Monte Carlo. I have had numerous interviews with both men and in this article will discuss the work of the Abbe, which subverted all previous theories of savants concerning the dwellers of the deep. Later I will write of Prince Albert's school for fish.

Before the marvelous discoveries of oceanography, naturalists had no conception of the possibilities of life "fathoms down." They knew that one of the principal factors of life is light and they long knew that light, or the rays of the sun, do not penetrate deep waters.

The Abbe Moreau told me that experiments show that beyond the depths of 2,225 yards no luminous wave can continue its journey through liquid bodies. Light therefore is entirely absent and the region of eternal night exists below that depth in the ocean.

What beings therefore could live in these depths was the query of past scientists. And naturalists of the first order concluded that if one day we discover fish dwelling in the depths of the ocean these strange creatures would not have the sense of light. Theoretically all the animals of the great deep should be not only blind but colorless. Yet practically nothing is further from the truth.

Of all the animals taken from the depths, the learned Abbe found, there is only one known which has no eyes. This fish is called the Ipnops de Murray, and its absent eyes are replaced by another organ, the precise function of which scientists have not determined, but they believe it enables the fish to feel its way about the depths.

All other animals found at great depths have eyes and some of them very large ones. If they have visual organs they must be for the purpose of seeing; yet how can they see at the depths of from 6,000, 9,000 or 12,000 yards where a ray of light never enters? This was the problem which oceanographers propounded, and the Abbe Moreau offered a solution.

The fishes themselves of these oceanic abysses produce the light of which they have need. Nature makes up for the lack of penetration of the sun's rays with its usual rule of compensation.

On the earth's surface man exhausts his intelligence in creating a light to take the place at night of the absent rays of the sun. He deems himself happy if he can capture for this purpose only a small percentage of the forces at his disposal for the production of luminous rays. Down in the deep waters fish transform vital energy into light, the rays of which are heating and chemical; and they can transform 98 per cent of resources which they control.

The mechanism by which this is done is still unknown. Here is an ideal light, the real cold light which physicians have sought in vain. What matters it then that the sun does not shine in these abyssal depths. Like the myriad of animalcules which on certain nights make the ocean phosphorescent, the fish themselves generate their own illumination.

Names have been given to these fish. Some of them are stomiades, the geratias, the eurypharynx and the melancetus. Consider the stomiades. The fish present luminous organs over their heads and sides. Other species of deep sea fish are even better equipped. Some are furnished with natural light projectors operating somewhat on the principle of lenses which collect luminous rays and cast them in the necessary directions. Often this apparatus provided by nature has a reflecting mirror which unites its effects with that of the lens; and certain other species are endowed by nature with colored discs which catch the rays of light and vary their effects, giving them a sort of natural cinema show.

While the stomiades blaze their way by means of luminous spots, the ceratias carry a lantern supplied by nature. This fish goes fishing as it were, with hook and line. It glides along on its stomach, exploring the depths which it visits and attracts little attention. As on the earth one carries a lantern when the night is dark, so the ceratias is similarly equipped. It shakes its luminous apparatus suspended at the end of the line. Little fishes come and go, suspecting no harm, but right over the bright light is the trap which catches and kills.

Another species of fishing fish is the himantolophus. It also fishes with a line, throwing out a ramifying tentacle whose luminous branches spread out fanlike, their light-giving effect being like that of a fuse. The lenophryne carries a double lantern and its way is blazed more brilliantly than any of the kindred species already mentioned, but the oneirodes goes one better, for it carries lights for and aft.

More curious still is the uranoscopes which takes up its position in the lowest depths and surveys its territory by means of enormous telescopes. So does the macrurus whose eyes are so large as to be out of all proportion to its size. It is the most palpable proof of the existence of eyes in those regions where the sun's rays never enter. But among the strangest animals of this lower region is the eurypharynx, whose way is lighted by a luminous plate, and in whose enormous gills is stored up food, as in a mighty stomach.

The melonocetus is also more remarkable for its enormous stomach pockets than even the light it spreads, while the chiasmus, not as luminous as the others, is interesting because it can capture prey three times as big as itself. It is the champion fighter in this marine oblivion.

Often the inhabitants of these depths are radiant with the most brilliant colors. There are some of violet color, some as blue as lapis lazuli, others opal or emerald, others agate or golden or bright vermilion of hue.

These specimens by no means exhaust the known varieties. The holocanthus bristle all over with thorny rays of light. Visitors to Monte Carlo have seen the medusae promenade, so to speak, in the aquarium of the late Prince Albert, illuminating the water all around them as they swim about.

It is well known that the torpille, or torpedo fish, possesses a mysterious electrical arsenal whose shock is most painful, while there is another deepsea fish so bright it is called the star of the sea. Cruisers in Norwegian water often see a fish like it, but the Norwegian specimen is called the brising.

There are many different types of the star of the sea. Several species were caught in submarine expeditions financed by the late Prince of Monaco. His submarine boat, "Princess Alice," was named after his American wife, Miss Alice Heine of New Orleans.

It was on one of the expeditions of the "Princess Alice" that the bizarre animal which savants call the eurypharynx was caught. Besides the curiosity of its luminous quills, its mouth closely resembles that of the pelican. Other queer fish of the depths are the aphyonius, with a bright streak of light along its back; the bright-headed macrurus, with all its life in its head, and the chauliodus, one of the most voracious of fishes.

These studies of the sea completely overturned the theories of the ancients, who regarded the deep as the habitation of all sorts of weird creatures. Among the slaughtered phantasies is the seahorse or hippocampus. Gone also is the legend of the sirens, those divine enchantresses whose perfidious beauty was alleged to draw many seamen to their doom. These are gone, along with the belief in mermaids, despite the claim once made that fishermen had caught a specimen of one off Shetland Islands.

time the consumer has been discovered to have an interest in relation to legislation to control the farmer.

Prices of the farmer must be regulated in the interest of the consumer, but so far as any other element is concerned, the sky is the limit. In fact the government will put in its dollar's worth here and there to add to the consumer's burden.

"Good as our present farm program is, it ought to be improved to take care of the consumers' interest in years of bad weather and of the producers' interest in years of good weather," said President Roosevelt in recommending farm legislation that is supposed to set the farmer up after all government machinery in other interests has been set to keep him down.

In other words, if the weather is favorable for the farmer and unfavorable for the consumer, the consumer must get the break on prices for farm products.

In all other lines of goods and services, in which the farmer is the great ultimate consumer, however, the government continually has said, "Never mind the consumer."

Mental and emotional qualities such as intelligence, will, ruthlessness, dominance, etc., are qualities of the brain and nervous system—not of the bones or muscles or fat of the face. Napoleon, the most dominating figure of his time, Caesar, the most dominating will of the Roman world, Alexander the dominating mind of his age—all had rather regular, "Greek" type of faces.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. There are two kinds of such worriers—those who worry merely over the loss of sex appeal, and those who worry over possible loss of the job and being left penniless in old age. The former type are emotional adolescents—women with grown-up intellects but with girlish emotions. Nothing is finer than the grey-headed woman who carries her age with the dignity of maturity. But worry about losing her job in old age is, for the working woman, hard to avoid. It may be her very maturity and foresight that lead her to worry.

ROBINSON LAID TO FINAL REST IN LITTLE ROCK

Notables Attended Funeral of Late Democratic Leader

Little Rock, Ark., July 19—(AP)—The epic chapter of American history written by Joseph Taylor Robinson of Arkansas ended today in a flower-banked grave.

Scores of the nation's leaders joined thousands of saddened Arkansians yesterday in final tribute as the state's illustrious son was returned to his native soil.

Robinson's last rites brought together people from every walk of life. Vice President John Nance Garner came from his home at Uvalde, Texas, to represent President Roosevelt.

Postmaster General James A. Farley stood beside his grave in Rose Lawn Memorial park. Nearly 50 of his Senate colleagues and a large delegation from the House served as honorary pall bearers.

Former Vice President Charles G. Dawes and Patrick Hurley, Secretary of War under President Hoover, followed in the funeral procession. Governors of Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma were among an estimated 10,000 men and women, white and black, old and young, who walked past his bier.

"Perhaps no man in our generation has been more nearly a representative American," said the Rev. H. Bascom Watts in his funeral sermon at First Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The day of public sorrow began with the arrival of Robinson's body on a special train from Washington. Accompanying it was his grief-bowed widow, members of his family, the congressional delegation and other distinguished visitors.

AIR SHOW DREW OVER 5,000 TO DIXON AIRPORT

Greatest Exhibition Ever Seen Here is Their Reward

At least 5000 persons jammed the Dixon Municipal airport for the second annual air show sponsored by the Forty and Eight Sunday afternoon. Gerald Jones reported this morning and thousands of others lined fields and farmyards outside the airport to witness the performance.

Featuring the fine program was the bat-wing leap of Irvin Davis, death-defying aerial stuntman, who left the plane at a height of 10,000 feet and, leaving a trail of smoke behind him on his downward plunge, spiraled to an elevation of 1200 feet before opening his parachute. This was the first time a stunt of this nature had ever been presented west of Cleveland.

Free-for-All Race

A free-for-all race for the beautiful Forty and Eight trophies was held with Shilling of Kankakee winning first place and a major share of the prize money. He flew a taper-winged Waco plane. Koerner of Kankakee flying a Stinson model took second place and Sandberg of Rockford with a Travelaire monocoque was third, in this event.

A remarkable feature of the entire show was the fact that no automobile accident or any other kind of mishap occurred at the airport. The Forty and Eight, through the columns of the Telegraph today, expressed its grateful appreciation of the service rendered by eight state highway policemen, members of the Legion Post No. 12, not members of the Forty & Eight, who supported the air show with their assistance at the airport, and the citizens of Dixon who supported the Legion by paying their admission to the airport field, showing interest in the continuance of these thrilling circus.

31 Planes in Troupe

Thirty-one planes composed the troupe exhibiting here, including the new Walgreen plane "Skydard". Passengers were taken up all day by the pilots. The program of the show consisted of acrobatics, skywriting, aerial dog-fight, parachute leaps, balloon straining, races, and the bat-wing leap.

The model airplane contest for boys was won by Jim Baden of Dixon who took a silver trophy award as his prize. Dick Wallace of Sterling won a twin pushed model airplane kit as second prize. The Baden model flew for two minutes, fifty-five and four tenths seconds. It was a "Miss America" monocoque with a seven foot wing spread and a Brown Junior one-fifth horsepower gasoline motor.

'Fourth Horseman' of Enemies of Corn Makes Appearance

Urbana, Ill., July 19—(AP)—What State Entomologist W. P. Flint called the "fourth horseman" of the insect enemies to threaten Illinois' corn crop has made its appearance in all sections of the state he said today.

"Corn ear worm, which feeds on the top of the ear of corn, is the most frequently encountered of the many insect pests that attack corn," Flint said. "He listed grasshoppers, army worms and chinch bugs as the other three 'horsemen'."

"The adult or parent of this (corn ear) worm is a buff-colored moth with a wing spread of one inch or more. It flies mainly at night and deposits its eggs on the plants on which the worms feed."

Flint said the worm could be found on corn, tomatoes, beans, alfalfa, tobacco and cotton.

Never do the Estes eat fish, fowl "or meats of animals with blood streams." The loin-clothed children are tutored at home, seldom leave the estate with its playground and swimming pool. The five boys are named St. Louis Estes II to VI. The new baby, shown in its mother's arms, has not been named, but Mrs. Estes says no matter, neither have two previous girls. PICCARD MULTI-BALLOONED AIR-CRAFT BURNED

Fell in Flames After Trip Of Only 75 Miles Sunday

Lansing, Iowa, July 19—(AP)—Twisted and charred wreckage in an isolated farmland valley was all that remained today of Dr. Jean Piccard's unique multi-ballooned aircraft in which he made a six-hour experimental flight from Rochester, Minn.

The stratosphere flier studied the results of the flight from menial notes. Fire which enveloped the novel craft as it landed in a clump of trees destroyed data recorded by delicate instruments.

The landing point was about 75 miles by air from Rochester.

Dr. Piccard was non-committal as to whether the flight had achieved his objective—to determine the feasibility of using a cluster of small balloons in place of the conventional single large bag for stratosphere explorations.

Hair Singed

The Swiss-born veteran of several successful stratosphere flights had planned a journey to the rarified air region with a craft lifted by 2,000 scudding balloons if the experiment were successful.

Dr. Piccard escaped from his flaming "bath tub" gondola with nothing more than singed hair. But the fire melted the metal of the gondola, burned away most of the ropes and shrouds, and destroyed the instruments.

The scientist said the fire might have been caused by the explosion of TNT which he detonated in order to facilitate the descent. The explosion blasted away the upper half of the 95 four-foot balloons filled with hydrogen gas.

Dr. Piccard took off from an athletic field at Rochester at 12:08 A. M. Sunday.

Founder of Parker Pen Company Dead

Chicago, July 19—(AP)—George S. Parker, 73, of Janesville, Wis., chairman of the board of directors and a founder of the Parker Pen Co., died early today at a hospital here.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Martha Parker; a son, Kenneth Parker, president of the pen company, both of Janesville; a daughter, Mrs. Gerald Bate of Ottawa, Ontario, Can., and five grandchildren.

Parker and the late W. F. Palmer founded the pen company which has plants in Janesville and Toronto, Canada, in 1891.

A member of the family said funeral service would be held at Janesville at 2:30 P. M. Wednesday.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Life" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 18.

The Golden Text was, "Now that the dead are raised, even Moses showed at the bush, when he called the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living; for all live unto him" (Luke 20: 37, 38).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Verily, verily, I say unto you. The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live. For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself" (John 5: 25-26).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The understanding that Life is God, Spirit, lengthens our days by strengthening our trust in the deathless reality of Life, its almightiness and immortality" (p. 487).

During the eruption fire shot upward thousands of feet, witnesses said, and boulders were tossed high into the air, exploding from the intense heat.

FELLER AGAIN BEATEN 5 TO 1; DI MAGGIO HITS

Yankee Star Spikes Youthful Hurler's Comeback Try

BY SID FEDER

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Old Blubber Malone is somewhat sore in certain portions of his anatomy today—but he figures it was worth it.

Just to keep the records straight, it must be explained that Old Blubber is a portly pitcher for the New York Yankees. Those who aren't his pals say his waistline, if stretched end to end, would make a good start on a cross-country highway. That being the case, violent exercise comes hard to Old Blubber.

But when he looked in from the bullpen at Cleveland yesterday and saw that home run shot of jolting Joe DiMaggio drop into the far away left field stands, bringing in the four runs that sent blazling Bobby Feller down to a 5-1 defeat, Old Blubber just had to up and turn handsprings.

But more than causing Old Blubber to toss his left around with no caution for his well being, the clout that Deadpan Dimag poled out with the bases loaded, to break up a honey of a ball game, had a lot of added significance for Joe, himself.

He's Top Sophomore.

In the first place, it just piled on the already overwhelming evidence that he is the top sophomore in the baseball business this year. In the second, it gave a brand new talking point to those who are carrying the torch for Joe as the season's most valuable player.

Right now he's leading the big-time in homers—yesterday's was his 24th,—and is giving his teammate Lou Gehrig a merry battle for the American league batting lead. Defensively, his arm is being talked of in the same breath as the greatest the game has known.

Yesterday, while most of the Yanks were fanning at thin air, Jarring Joe had a field day. He hit a triple and a double as well as his homer, drove in all five of the Yankee runs, and generally put the needle in Feller's third straight futile "comeback" effort.

His job of work on Feller's lightning ball stole the show from such other diamond doings as the hot National League fight between the Giants and the Cubs, and the pitching perfection of the Cincinnati Reds' youngsters.

Cubs Defeat Brooklyn.

With Augie Galan hitting two homers, the Cubs clouted Brooklyn twice, 7-6 and 9-4, to retain their margin of three percentage points in the senior circuit chase. The Giants stayed right in the running by finding the Cardinals a double-header pushover, 6-5 and 11-0, with King Hubbell and Prince Hal Schumacher doing the pitching honors that dropped the Gas House gang into fourth place.

Peaches Davis pitched a five-hitter and Lefty Grissom produced a two-hit shutout as the Reds whipped the Boston Bees, 4-1 and 1-0.

The Pirates managed only an even break with the Phillies, winning the nightcap, 6-5, in 11 innings, after dropping the opener, 5-2, to Claude Passeau's pitching.

Although held to two hits by Monte Weaver and Ed Linke, the Tigers topped the Senators, 3-1, on walks and errors. Chicago's climbing White Sox socked the Boston Red Sox, 6-5 and 1-0, the latter on Monty Stratton's three-hit pitching. The Browns beat the Athletics 10-6 in their opener, and then lost the nightcap, 7-6.

60,000 SAW GAME.

Cleveland, July 19—(AP)—The Iowa family Feller—dad, mother, Pitcher Bob and pretty 8-year-old Marguerite—agreed today that Yankee baseball's "Murderers' Row" knew whereof he spoke.

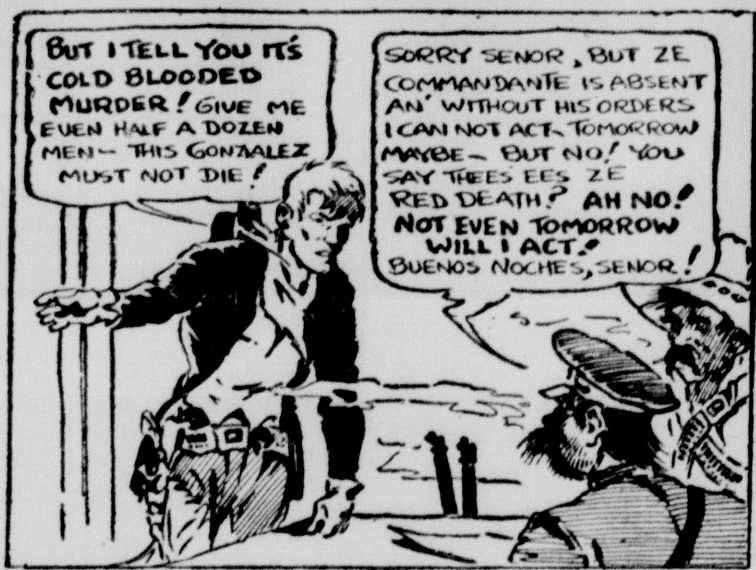

Bob, the 18-year-old American League strikeout ace, went the route for the Cleveland Indians yesterday, held the dynamic Yankees in check for eight innings—then lost, 5 to 1, to lethal Joe DiMaggio.

Nearly 60,000 fans saw the slugging fielder from Frisco convert Feller's curve ball into a storybook hit—a home run in the ninth inning with the bases loaded and the score tied. DiMaggio rifled the ball into spacious Cleveland Stadium's left field seats.

WILMER ALLISON TO SEE DOCTOR ABOUT HIS LEG

New York Physician Will Decide Fate of Tennis Star

Spring Lake, N. J., July 19—(AP)—A physician will decide whether Wilmer L. Allison, former national champion, will play any more tennis this season.

After winning a leg on the Clifford Hemphill bowl in the annual Spring Lake invitation tournament yesterday, the Texas veteran said he would consult a New York specialist concerning two injuries which tempted him to default several times during the singles competition.

A bandaged right arm and an aggravated right knee had little effect on his game, however, as he defeated Ernest Sutter of New Orleans, National Intercollegiate champion, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2, in the final.

But Allison wants to be sure that continued activity will not precipitate his permanent retirement from the tennis courts—hence the trip to New York.

If the doctor permits, Allison will enter the annual Longwood Cricket Club tournament which started today at Chestnut Hill, Mass. The champion holds two legs on the Longwood trophy, and if the field is not too formidable, he may attempt to retake the cup.

From there Allison aims for the 50th annual Seabright (N. J.) Lawn Tennis & Cricket Club tournament—but the national championships are "out".

"I'll be heading back to my brokerage business in Austin after the Seabright tournament," he said.

Allison went through the Spring Lake tourney with the loss of only two sets.

Izard Is Crowned New Rifle Champ

Springfield, Ill., July 19—(AP)—Ralph P. Izard, of Chicago, was the new Illinois rifle champion today.

He scored 509 out of a possible 550 points yesterday to win the two-day match sponsored by the Illinois State Rifle Association.

B. M. Puhmann, of Quincy, scored 502 to win second place. Other high scorers were Paul E. Poe of Milan with 487, and W. H. Oyls of Moline, 460.

An Illinois team, which will compete in the national matches at Camp Perry in August, will be chosen from high scorers at yesterday's meet and the match held a week ago at Fort Sheridan.

Baseball Tryouts Open At Rockford Blackhawk Park

Rockford, Ill., July 19—(AP)—A six-day try-out camp for young baseball players opened at Blackhawk park today under the direction of the Decatur Combies of the Three-Eye League. The Combies are owned by the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League.

The camp will be in charge of L. J. Wyllie, Decatur club president. Pat Crawford, former Cardinal infielder, Heinie Mueller, former Cardinal and New York Giant outfielder, and Joe Mathes, a regional director for the Cardinals.

Yanks, took the defeat philosophically. So did Bob.

"It's hard to beat those Yankees with one run, they're such a powerful lot of boys," remarked Mrs. Feller, a mild-mannered little woman. She was more concerned with the condition of her son's hurling arm, which gave him trouble until recently.

"Well, it isn't very easy," grinned Bob. "Still, if I had got that curve to breaking properly on the last pitch to DiMaggio, they might have been beaten."

Fights for Life

Lafayette, Ind., July 19—(AP)—Noble E. Kizer, one of the seven husky "mules" who paced the gridiron attacks of Knute Rockne's "Four Horsemen" at Notre Dame more than a decade ago, battled for his life in St. Elizabeth's hospital here today.

Kizer, now head football coach and athletic director at Purdue University, is in a "serious" condition, hospital attaches said, from a lingering illness described as a nephritic ailment.

Kizer has been connected with Purdue's athletic department since 1926. He became head football coach in 1930 and athletic director in 1933.

PLUM HOLLOW STAG PARTY TO BE BEST EVER

Plum Hollow's annual stag party to be held this year on Thursday, July 22, is promising to be the best ever held by the club says Caretaker Ted Talty.

Featuring the day will be the quantity of refreshments to be served at the caddy house, Sauerkraut, sausages and pork will be prevalent in abundant supplies. The radio entertainers will be on hand to toll the bones and play their harmonicas for the entertainment of those not playing. The matches will begin at 1:30 P. M. and continue all afternoon and evening.

In the evening prizes will be awarded for putting, driving and approaching contests to be held on tees and greens as yet not named. Some record scores are expected to be hung up at the stag party.

Last year a new nine-hole record for Plum Hollow was counted by Tom Stokes, who toured the course in 30 strokes. C. B. Lindell sank his tees shot on No. 5 last year but the "hole-in-one" did not count as such because he had first driven one into the rough to the left and had shot his second ball from the tee.

Medinah's Tough No. 3 Course is Open for Trials

Chicago, July 19—(AP)—The Medinah Country Club's difficult No. 3 course, where the final 36 holes of the $10,000 Chicago open golf tournament will be held next Sunday, was opened today for practice rounds.

The tournament, starting Friday on the club's No. 1 course and continuing through Saturday, will draw a crack field of stars, including national open champion Ralph Guldahl, P. G. A. title-holder Denny Shute, Horton Smith, Harry Cooper, Henry Pickard, Jimmy Thompson and scores of other luminaries.

First prize money will be $3,000, with amateurs playing for four merchandise prizes.

The tournament, richest of the season to date, will be conducted in carnival atmosphere. There will be trick shot exhibitions, driving and putting events and other contests for prizes collected by the Chicago District Golf Association.

Proceeds from the event will go into a caddy welfare fund to help the 15,000 young bag-toters in the Chicago district.

Iowa State Tennis Tournament Begins

Des Moines, Ia., July 19—(AP)—Tennis players from Los Angeles to Washington, D. C., will take part in the Iowa state tournament which opens today on the Des Moines club courts here.

Seeded No. 1 in the tourney is Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines, defending state champion.

Dick Hainline of Rock Island, Ill., heads the list in the junior division, outranking Marvin Carlock of Los Angeles in second position, and Aart Nielsen of Evanston, Ill., seeded No. 3.

Tinsley of Louisiana State, Wadsworth of Minnesota, Reid of Northwestern, Kelly of Yale, and Francis of Nebraska were tied for the lead in Dixon's poll of candidates for the College All-Star football team that will take the field September 7 against the Green Bay Packers.

Tinsley received four votes for the left end position, Wadsworth four for left tackle, Reid four for left guard, and Francis four for fullback. Kelly of Yale was given four votes for right end. Voting was light the first week of the poll, only forty-five votes being cast here. Results will be sent to the Chicago Tribune sports department which is conducting the annual poll with the cooperation of over 200 newspapers.

Here and There In Sports World

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, July 19—(AP)—Boston reports John Montague, golf's mystery man (now in the news—and how) once was the property of the Bees and showed real promise. Rip Collins of the Cubs disagrees with Bill Terry's opinion that Ducky Wadsworth would hit 500 if he didn't go for bad balls.

"He wouldn't hit 300," contends Rip, "for most of his hits come on bad balls." The Yankees have a jolt, or rather a slump coming if you want to take the word of smart old Rogers Hornsby of the Browns. "In all my years of baseball, I've never seen a club go through one full season without experiencing at least one bad slump," he said. "I don't care how powerful they are."

Brooklyn Eagle's sport pages, now sparkling under the brilliant direction of Jimmy Woods, put over a couple of scoopers today. They reported Eddie Butler, one-time Cornell Quarterback, tried to buy the Dodgers for $1,500,000 and also printed a picture of Al Weill, manager of lightweight champ Lou Ambers, without his famous veskit.

So far as this column knows, this is the first time this feat was ever accomplished. Bobby Cruikshank, the Richmond pro, called his shots in both the U. S. and British opens by picking Ralph Guldahl and Henry Cotton.

Bucky Harris would like to do a lot of experimenting with his Washington team—if he had anything to experiment with.

Mike Jacobs is scaling the Yankee Stadium for an $800,000 gate for Joe Louis and Tommy Farr. Cheering news: That AP picture of Mickey Cochrane, showing him sitting in a wheel chair and looking great. Bob Quinn, president of the Bees, is back from a personally conducted scouting tour of the American Association.

Strain seems to be telling on both the Cubs and Giants. It will cost you exactly $7.50 to attend the opening of Benny Leonard's new eating joint.

PAN-AMERICAN GAMES PROVED GREAT SUCCESS

Stimulate Good Will Between U. S. and Latin America

Dallas, Texas, July 19—(AP)—Inspired by the "good neighbor" spirit of the Pan-American games, the ambassador from Brazil moved today to perpetuate the event by bringing it to his country in 1938.

An active drive will be started in his country, Ambassador Oswaldo Aranha told officials of the Texas and Pan-American Exposition, to bring crack performers and soccer teams to Rio de Janeiro next summer.

Officials of the exposition, sponsors of this year's games, said contact would be established with the national A. A. U. with a view to placing the game on an annual basis with one-year intermissions during Olympic games.

23,000 At Games

Unschooling in big-time track and field and soccer, the southwest turned out for the games in crowds, topped by the 23,000 Saturday night who saw John Woodruff, University of Pittsburgh Negro, race the 800-meters in world-record breaking time of 1:47.8—two seconds faster than a five-year-old mark.

An estimated 55,000 persons attended during the four days the meet lasted.

Track experts, amazed at Woodruff's race, predicted the mark never would be touched.

The Argentina soccer team, composed of youngsters less than 20 years old and hand-picked off the many soccer fields of their nation, bagged the Pan-American tourney by wallopping Canada, 8-1, in the final game.

Grimm Will Rejoin His Team Next Week

St. Louis, July 19—(AP)—Dr. Robert F. Hyland said Charley Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, was "much improved" today and would rejoin his baseball club when it returned home next week from an eastern tour.

Grimm entered a hospital last for examination and observation for what Hyland said was a sciatic condition. Hyland said Grimm would undergo further treatment after the close of the 1937 season.

The Story of the Constitutional Convention of 1787

BY RAYMOND PITCAIRN

JUDICIAL AND OTHER POWERS

During late July of 1787, members of the Convention that wrote the Federal Constitution stated two principles which, for a century and a half, have remained fundamental characteristics of our National government.

They were: (1) that the three branches of government—Legislative, Executive and Judiciary—must remain independent of each other; and (2) that power not specifically allocated in the Constitution should remain with the people.

The statements were made during discussions on methods of establishing judicial and other powers in the new nation, and of choosing the Chief Executive.

"If it be a fundamental principle of free government that the Legislative, Executive and Judiciary power should be separately exercised," said James Madison, of Virginia, "it is equally so that they be independently exercised. There is the same and perhaps greater reason why the Executive should be independent of the Legislature than why the Judiciary should."

To which Rufus King, of Massachusetts, added that he wished the Convention to remember "the primitive axiom that the three great departments of government should be separate and independent; that the Executive and Judiciary should be so, as well as the Legislature; that the Executive should be so, equally with the Judiciary."

In support of that principle James Wilson, of Pennsylvania, explained: "The separation of the departments does not require that they should have separate objects, but that they should act separately though on the same objects."

In contrast to the long and often bitter debate which had marked consideration of the Legislative branch of government, discussion of the Judiciary branch was comparatively brief.

It involved, among other things, methods of selecting judges; a point solved by the proposal of Nathaniel Gorham, of Massachusetts, that they be appointed by the Executive with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Rev. Dake Resumes Pulpit Duties in Zion Church Sunday

Zion, Ill., July 19—(AP)—The Rev. Finis Jennings Dake, 35, back from five months' confinement in the Milwaukee, Wis., House of Correction, went his usual pastoral way today.

Welcomed enthusiastically by his Christian Assembly church congregation yesterday, the Rev. Dake sounded a warning against "human weaknesses" and urged his parishioners to "forget the past."

It marked his first appearance in the pulpit since his conviction in Federal court on charges of violating the Mann Act. He was accused of taking a 16-year-old Kenosha, Wis., girl on trips to Bloomington and East St. Louis, Ill.

"I'm not going to preach a sermon," the pastor, who is married and the father of an eight-year-old daughter, told his congregation. "I'm just going to make a few remarks."

"Now, friends," he said, "let's forget our sorrows and the past. I feel God and know he's here."

MOTHER, BABE SAVED

Litchfield, Ill.—(AP)—Mrs. Ada Vogel Barry and 17-months-old daughter, Isabelle, were recovering at St. Francis hospital today after being saved from drowning yesterday in Walton Park lake. Russell Day Prece pulled the woman and the baby clasp in her arms, from the water and applied first aid.

Showgirl Favors Count, Not Rudy

Rudy Vallee's place in the heart of Evelyn Gresham, 18, above, has been usurped by a European count, the showgirl disclosed as she sailed for Cannes, France, with a girls' troupe. Rumors of her romance with the orchestra leader followed his assault and battery fracas in Boston, where Vallee pummeled a news photographer who attempted to snap their picture.

The land had been in a soil-improving rotation and treated with limestone.

CHAPTER IV

TUESDAY: "Ever heard of a man called Jigger heard here?" I asked Cal when he came into the kitchen this morning to fix the stoves and fill the ice boxes.

"Jigger?" Cal repeated in a questioning voice. Then he laughed, though not before I caught a flicker of anger in his old blue eyes. "That ain't no name, Miss Joy. What are you trying to put over on me this morning?" and, pulling his tobacco pouch from his hip pocket, he shoved a handful of rough cut into his almost toothless mouth.

"Oh, but it is," I replied. "He was here last night."

Cal's jaws dropped, and again, for a second, I caught a look of anger in his eyes when he said, "What have you got up your sleeves, Miss Joy? Better spill the beans . . . guess you're up to some city game . . . trying to put something over on us."

"Not at all, but when every one was at the movies, the man came to the door and wanted me to let him in to call a number."

"Ain't Mrs. Fenwick told you yet she don't let folks come in and use the phone, less they put up their money first? You see lots of trucks get in trouble after coming up the long hill and as there ain't no telephone nearer than a mile away they often want to use hers."

"Well, that's just what happened to his truck; but I wouldn't let a man like that in here unless I had a battalion of the National Guard here to meet him. He looked like a thug, with ferret-like eyes. If Roddy hadn't been scared, wonder if you know the number he called. I wrote it down. Here it is."

"That don't mean anything to me, Miss. In the summer there's a lot more telephones in use with all the visitors around. Reckon this ice box can hold another hundred pounds," and Cal left the kitchen, while Tess, the head waitress, said:

"What was that you were telling Cal? Had burglars here last night?"

"No, only a man wanting to use the phone; but the funny thing about him is that just before I came up here, I saw him as we crossed the Queensborough bridge. He was driving a swell car, then, but last night he had a big truck, covered with tarpaulin."

"Gee, maybe he was a bandit making away with his swag," Tess suggested. "Bet Cal will make it his business to find out all about him. He's better than a newspaper," and she laughed.

"Yes," I agreed, realizing that Cal is quite a character—"a native," Mrs. Fenwick calls him, which I suppose accounts for his queer ways, though she declares he's the mainstay of the team. Well, if being able to fix electric appliances, repair furniture, raise flowers and vegetables, is the rating of "a native" I guess that's not so bad. Anyway when things go wrong here—no matter what—the cry is, "Get Cal!"

I'll remember what Tess says. Maybe I'll tackle Cal again about "Jigger" . . . he seems out of place here . . . looks like a crook. Can't get over the idea of how perfectly ridiculous it is for a woman as rich as Mrs. Fenwick to wear herself to a frazzle running this show when she really doesn't need to do it. Cal says she has a fortune of her own, besides, whenever she goes into some new venture, her husband always puts up a wad of dough.

"He must think a lot of her," I remarked while I arranged the flowers for the team.

Cal threw back his head and laughed. "Dunno about that. She's always talking about expressing herself. Well, if I know the old man, he'd rather pay for her to express herself on something else than bother himself listening to her harangues."

MURPHY, UNIONS SEEKING END TO TRUCK STRIKE

Muskegon, Mich., July 19—(AP)—Gov. Frank Murphy, predicting a "speedy settlement" and negotiators for both sides sought an end to the state-wide truck strike today and conflicting reports of a truce already in effect.

Both union leaders and operators agreed to send representatives to a noon conference called by Gov. Murphy while a company spokesman disputed a union announcement of a 30-day truce.

The truce announcement was branded by J. L. Heath, chairman of the Employers' negotiations committee at Lansing, as "just a face-saving gesture on the part of union organizers."

"The strike," Heath said, "is ended—broken through the demand of our employees to return to their jobs. If the union wants to take up the matter of negotiations again, it will have to start all over."

Earlier R. J. Bennett, spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers which called an intrastate truck strike at midnight Wednesday, said operators had agreed to a truce.

Brain Twizzlers

By PROF. J. D. FLINT

By PROF. J. D. FLINT

Today's story is about an agriculturist who wished to test the ingenuity of his three sons. He gave Bill fifteen eggs, Bib fifteen eggs, and Jack eighty-five eggs. He then instructed them to take the eggs to the village and each sell his eggs at the same price the other two were selling for. They were to come home with the same amount of money for the eggs and they could not each sell their whole lot at once. How were the eggs sold in order to follow instructions?

Let us warn you that the correct prices to answer the problem may sound ridiculous to you but it's all in fun and this can be worked out.

Answer to Yesterday's Twizzler

The minute hand, of course, travels twelve times as fast as the hour hand. At five o'clock the hands start from their positions and at five-twenty-five the minute hand has traveled eleven twelfths of the journey to catch up to the hour hand. One eleventh of the twenty-five minutes is two and three elevenths minutes. Two and three elevenths minutes multiplied by twelve gives us twenty-seven minutes, sixteen and thirty-five minutes—therefore the hands of the clock met and the murder took place at twenty-seven minutes, sixteen and thirty-five hundredths seconds after five o'clock.

INDUSTRY TALKS

Prepared by the Bureau of Research and Education, Advertising Research of America

OUR AMERICAN RAILROADS

We Americans have a restless spirit. We want action. We admire people who get things done. We're never content with things as they are. We're always demanding something better; we welcome every improvement.

It is this spirit that has made America the great country it is, conquering the wilderness, annihilating distance, welding the forty-eight states together, making the whole United States a market for products of the farm and range, the mill and factory.

Every one knows the part that the railroads played in the early development of the country. Not all of us realize the vital part the railroads still play today. In the past six years, for example, when the whole world was suffering from hard times, the railroads stepped out with new equipment, faster schedules, greater comfort, better service to passengers and shippers, and with it all a greater measure of safety. They gave more for the money—a tested principle of American business. We all benefit from faster and more efficient freight service. Millions of people now enjoy the comfort and cleanliness of riding in air-conditioned cars.

These are only high points. More than a thousand men are busy on railroad research, developing new safety equipment, better signals, apparatus, more efficient brakes, and countless other devices and processes ranging all the way from water softening to the melting of snow.

Railroading is a vast operation because it takes a gigantic transportation system to serve the needs of the American public. The railroads, for instance, maintain their own "highways"—a quarter million miles of steel. Last year the two million freight cars on American railroads traveled more than nineteen billion miles. This job is done so skillfully, so economically that the railroads are able to haul a ton of freight a mile at an average cost to the shipper of less than one cent.

It is not surprising that delegations from all over the world travel to the United States to inspect our railroads, study them, and learn from them. You may wonder why the American railroads have shown such a marvelous rate of development as compared with other countries. The answer is the same as it is in the case of other American industries. So long as ability and ambition are free to go ahead and to reap the earned rewards of public patronage, rapid industrial progress is sure to follow. Under these conditions our railroads can promise a brilliant future.

Every business needs the public's friendship. It can win this in part by being friendly with the people whom it serves. But friendship must grow out of understanding, and understanding must be based on information. For this reason, the railroads are now using advertising to make a report to the public covering the many things they do and the way they do them.

It is a great and inspiring story, of a business which is resolutely working out its own recovery by the time-tested principles of self-reliance and hard work.

Foreign pollen usually is more effective than pollen from the same plant. Charles Darwin, great naturalist, showed, by years of experimenting, that plants derive great advantages from cross-pollination. Most plants which benefit by this method depend on wind and insects to do the work.

FARMERS FACING LABOR SHORTAGE DURING HARVEST

Chicago, July 19—(AP)—A labor shortage faced the American farmer today as he prepared for what was forecast as a bountiful harvest.

In the midwest grain belt, in the northeast and throughout the vegetable-growing region, farmers reported harvest crews shorthanded. And they offered government statisticians said, wages higher than any since 1930 for farmhands.

Farmers, the statisticians said, could not get an adequate supply of labor in most agricultural sections. Few unemployed men, a survey showed, were seeking work on farms.

"We hear," a spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation said, "there is a pronounced shortage of labor." The Federation also reported higher wages were offered.

Works progress administration payrolls in 13 states showed a decline after WPA official announced men would be permitted to quit jobs or projects to work in the midwest harvest. The men, if still in need, officials said, will be re-employed within 90 days.

In 1,171 counties of the 13 states in WPA's midwestern region, records for June 30 showed 287 had less than 100 and 106 counties less than 50 men on WPA rolls.

Regional officials of WPA said they "understand many men are taking work on farms during the harvest season". But they attributed part of the reduction to a cut in appropriations and projects.

Heads Japanese in North China

With China massing its strength in defense of Peiping, Japan sent General Kiyoshi Katsuki, above, by airplane to command the thousands of Japanese troops pouring into North China daily. This action, reported to come directly from the emperor, places one of Japan's ablest generals in command of its Peiping battle forces.

Fugitives From Texas Prison Not Yet Apprehended

Sapulpa, Okla., July 19—(AP)—Three heavily-armed fugitives from a Texas prison farm who swore they would never be returned alive apparently had left a cold trail in Oklahoma today. Northeast Oklahoma officers continued to patrol the highways with orders to shoot to kill.

No trace of the convicts—Roy (Pete) Traxler, Charles Chapman, and Fred Tindol—has been reported since they released Baird Markham, Jr., son of a widely-known New York oil executive, near here yesterday.

Markham, kidnaped near Ada Thursday night, said the convicts told him they were bound for Canada.

Parliament Called To Discuss Removal Of Pilsudski's Body

Warsaw, July 19—(AP)—President Ignace Moscicki summoned today a special session of parliament to consider the controversy over removal of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski's body from Krakow Cathedral to a nearby tower.

The Polish government planned to inform deputies when the session convenes tomorrow that the controversy had been settled by a letter of apology from the Archbishop of Krakow, and adjourn the session immediately.

Some deputies have said they were dissatisfied. They stated the archbishop "offended the feelings of the whole nation", and should answer to parliament.

When the body was moved June 24 the archbishop explained the transfer was made because the crypt was too damp and small to accommodate visitors.

THRILLING ADVENTURES IN AFRICAN JUNGLES

The most thrilling 5-reel moving picture. Actual scenes with Armand Denis' and Leila Roosevelt's years of camera shooting and spine-chilling adventure in the seldom-traversed deep jungles of Africa. Of all the necessary details planned for this African expedition, transportation was considered most important. Through flaming heat . . . grueling sand and gravel . . . ice and snow . . . dangerous jungle streams—the heroic performance literally amazed famed explorers Armand Denis and Leila Roosevelt (Mrs. Armand Denis). See for yourself the almost unbelievable hardships and danger experienced on this thrill-packed journey. Don't by any means miss it.
